

“Equality implies to individuality” by Trey Anastasio means the every person should have the same rights and deserve to be treated fairly whether they have dark or light skin, male or female, and different nationalities. I placed lady justice at the middle of my drawing because she symbolizes equality and diversity to all. The trees represent the people in different shapes, sizes and colors. The word down below her statute is a Greek word that translates to equality. I combined pastel and dark colors to symbolize that they can create something beautiful despite their differences. The mountains and trees are based on Mt. Denali, the tallest mountain in our beloved state, Alaska.
