

What you are going to see is three dragons: one showing fairness, one showing equality, and another showing justice. The dragon in the bottom left shows fairness because of the peace sign its holding. The dragon in the bottom right corner shows equality because of the scale that its standing on and evening out the two people with its tail. The dragon at the top of the paper shows justice because of the dragon fighting for the good knights. Underneath each dragon you'll see a name of a language, and underneath the language you'll see how to spell dragon in those languages. That part shows diversity. That's how the art represents fairness, diversity, and equality.

A'Lante' Owens-Player

Third Prize, Category K-4

Grade 4, Scenic Park Elementary School